Dear Dr Shin,

In answer to your letter of the 2-5-13
which I just received,

1. I am not a computer scientist and indeed do not possess any computer and only hand write - I am therefore not a possible judge of your claim -

2. On a more general ground, I do not believe it is possible to declare anybody
'the best researcher' on any possible field - What induces me to this skepticism is my acquaintance and friendship with many Nobel prizes in physics, including my brother in law, two of my students and several of my very close friends over a long time -

3. Being myself 92, these long term connections have told me that any strain for oneself or for other people for primary do generally lead to unbalance in character and loss of research capacity -

Yours sincerely,

JF

Dear Editor-in-Chief Philip Campbell:

I am enclosing a copy of a letter that I sent to the governor of California, Jerry Brown, for publication in UC Berkeley Alumni Today. I believe that my essay should be examined by you and your colleagues prior to publication. Copies of other letters are also enclosed to inform you of my assertions.

I'd appreciate your candid feedback on the assertions using the contact information on my name card attached to this letter. Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,

Dr. Dong-Keun Shin

Dear Dr Shin

Thank you for submitting your manuscript, which we are regretfully unable to offer to publish.

It is Nature's policy to return a substantial proportion of manuscripts without sending them to referees, so that they may be sent elsewhere without delay. Decisions of this kind are made by the editorial staff when it appears that papers are unlikely to succeed in the competition for limited space.

In the present case, while your findings may well prove stimulating to others thinking about such questions, I regret that we are unable to conclude that the work provides the sort of firm advance in general understanding that would warrant publication in Nature. We therefore feel that the paper would find a more suitable outlet in a specialist journal.

I am sorry that we cannot respond more positively on this occasion, but I hope that you will rapidly receive a more favourable response elsewhere.

Dear Dr. Shin

This serves to acknowledge receipt of your letter of 5th December 2012 and related enclosures which were received on 25th January 2013, in which you informed His Excellency the President His Excellency Eliud T. Williams of your non encountering of any serious challenger since you claimed to have made the greatest contribution to computer science in 1997.

His Excellency noted the contents of your letter and enclosures, and asked me to convey to you every good wish in the future.

Yours sincerely
